

Sisters and Brothers,

For most of us, it's in our blood: helping people in need, doing something good to make our communities better. It's part of being a Steelworker and the reason why our union works in our communities.

We would like to start highlighting this amazing work on our website, social media networks, in our magazine and even on local media. Tell us what you're doing to lend a helping hand and we'll help tell your story!

Every day across the United States and Canada, USW members are working on food drives, raising money for a charity, donating time to schools, collecting bicycles for needy kids, getting holiday gifts for senior citizens and so much more.

Most people do this work not for recognition but simply because it's the right thing to do. Thank you for your community service and for taking Steelworker values into the places where we live and work.

We want to help share this amazing work. Visit our Website for more information on how to share your stories, photos and videos, and how to get connected to local media to help show the world why we truly are a union that works!

Thanks for all you do.
